Sulted From Injuries.

The inquest over the body of Mr. Allison was held resterday before Justice Ternes and a jury composed of Arthur Brodder. C. S. Pulver and Wint Bingham. The jury examined the marks on the man's body, the broken arm and the bruises about the foot before beginning the examination of witnesses. Manager Doane was on hand but he could tell little of what happened except as the bartender at the place where Alhson is alleged to have received the injuries that resulted in his death had told him. His story was about as has already been published in The Herald. The man was there and a crowd of fellows were there having a sort of high finks time.

Among other things they played baseball with sandwiches, etc., and were drinking freely. Allison went in and was treated by the crowd. He made rather a hog of himself and was sent out but returned and drank some more. The last time he was sent out was about 10 o'clock and Doane did not see him again till the next morning when he was discovered on a bench at the south end of the hotel. He was lying in an unnatural position, one arm being doubled back under his bench at the south end of the hotel. He was lying in an unnatural position, one arm being doubled back under his body and his neck awry. He cared for the man out of pity and sent for Sheriff Davis to bring a doctor from Brigham.
